1 Magic

1.1 Overview

The world of Empire is suffused with magic. Powerful magicians who can harness the powers of magic directly are not common, but every citizen of the Empire is familiar with at least a few pieces of hearth magic lore that they can use to make their life easier. Physicks and apothecaries use herbs infused with power to heal wounds, cure ills, and make an array of useful potions, while artisans use rare magical materials to produce items of power.

1.2 Magicians

Any character who has purchased the magician skill is able to cast some basic spells and dedicated spellcasters are able to learn many more. If you are playing a magician then you will need to read the rules for spellcasting.

Some magicians also learn how to perform rituals. Rituals are much more powerful than spells, but they are far slower to cast and much more expensive. Anyone who has purchased any ritual skills will need to read the rules for performing rituals.

1.3 Herbs and Potions

There are five magical herbs in Empire, which a physick can apply to heal wounds and remove a variety of ailments. Apothecaries take a different approach, mixing herbs together to create magical potions that anyone can drink. Anyone who has purchased either skill should read the rules for herbs and potions.

1.4 Artisans

Artisans fashion powerful magical items using rare magical materials found in the Empire and beyond. Every artisan knows how to make at least four different magical items; dedicated crafters can learn many more. A character must be bonded to a magic item to use it, a mystical act which can be performed at events by a magician or by an artisan who can make the item in question. Anyone who has purchased the artisan skill will need to read the rules for making magic items to pick which items they want to make.

1.5 Priests

Priests use liao to perform ceremonies which influence and affect the fate of their fellow citizens' souls. Few citizens consider these ceremonies to be magical - and most priests would bristle at the suggestion - but the fact remains that like the artisan and the apothecary, they are using powers unavailable to common folk.

Imperial priests follow the Way, a religion which promotes seven great virtues. Individual priests choose to dedicate themselves to one of these virtues or else extol the benefits of them all. Anyone who has purchased the dedication skill will need to read the rules for priests so that they know how to use their abilities wisely.

1.6 Hearth Magic

Hearth magic is the "common" magic of the world: the use of masks to hide identity, a sheaf of corn by a Marcher hearth. An outsider might consider such things nothing but superstition, but in the Empire this body of lore is true for the most part. Some of the most powerful magical effects are reliant on hearth magic at their heart.

Most nations have their own hearth magics, representing the lore that is most useful and most well known in those lands.

2 Magic items

2.1 Bonded Items

- Most magic items are made by artisans
- You must be bonded to these items to use them
- You can only be bonded to one item of each form at once
- Most magic items last up to four events

Almost all magic items require you to be bonded to them to use them. Magical items are indicated by a ribbon, stamped by Profound Decisions, that indicates that the item is visually unusual and has special abilities. Magicians can cast create bond to bond a character to an item, or an artisan can bond a character to any item that they know how to make. A bond lasts as long as the magic of an item endures, or until a magician breaks the bond using the create bond spell.

Personal magic items fall into one of three forms: weapons, armour, and talismans. You can only ever be bonded to one weapon, one suit of armour, and one talisman at any one time.

E.g. Your character is bonded to a Shieldbreaker weapon. You cannot become bonded to a Giant's Maul because both of these items are weapons.

A character who has purchased the artisan skill can make at least one magic item before every event. Magic items last for a single year from the day of creation. This means that they can be used at the following four events before the magic is lost.

2.2 Non-bonded Items

- Some magic items are activated and do not need to be bonded

A very small number of rare magic items can be used without the user needing to be bonded to them. Usually these items are one-shot items that require activation by the wielder to invoke the magic stored in them. It is not possible to bond to these items.

You should always assume that an item requires bonding unless explicitly told otherwise. The detect magic spell will tell the caster if an item does not require bonding to use.

2.3 Artefacts

- Artefacts are permanent magic items made by artisans using ilium

Artisans can use ilium to make a permanent artefact version of any magic item they can create. These powerful items retain their properties indefinitely, are readily identifiable as unique named items, and can exert powerful roleplaying effects over anyone bonded to them.

2.4 Personal Magic Items

- There are three types of magic item a character can be bonded to
- You can only be bonded to one of each form at once
- Many personal magic items require you to have one or more skills to bond to it

Characters may bond to three different types of personal items. You may only be bonded to one item of each form: weapons, armour, and talismans.

Each magic item has its own page on the wiki, but there is a summary of the magic items by category, linked on the right. The summary includes the name and basic effect of the item. There is also a complete summary of all magic items available.

2.4.1 Weapons

Weapons	Skills Needed to Bond

Daggers

One-Handed Weapons

Weapons	Skills Needed to Bond
Great Weapons	Weapon Master
One-Handed Spears	Weapon Master
Paired Weapons	Ambidexterity
Polearms	Weapon Master
Bows	Marksman
Arcane Weapons	Ambidexterity, Magician
Wands	Magician
Rods	Magician
Staves	Magician, Battle Mage
Ritual Staves	Magician
Icons	Dedication
Musical Instruments	Dedication

- Weapons include all items designed to be wielded
- You must have a weapon in hand and be actively using it to use its magical abilities

Most weapons are magic items designed to be held in the hand and wielded, presented or used. Weapons and implements are the most common weapons, but this type also covers icons, ritual staves and musical instruments.

Paired weapons and arcane weapons are a single magic item that consists of two one-handed weapons or a one-handed weapon and an implement respectively. They are intended to be used together, and count as a single object for purposes of bonding.

A ritual staff is designed to be used by a ritualist during the performance of a ritual. It must be a phys-rep of a staff that is over 42' long and up to 84' long. It does not need to be a weapon safe implement and you do not need the battle mage skill to bond to and make use of these items, but you do need to have the battle mage skill to use it as a weapon. You do need the battle mage skill to bond to and use a regular magical staff.

Icons and musical instruments are magic items designed to be held in the hands that are used by a character with the dedication skill. The phys-rep for a musical instrument must be a musical instrument more complex than a triangle, and it must be played by the character bonded to it as part of the appropriate roleplaying used to activate its powers. An icon must be a phys-rep of a piece of religious imagery appropriate to the Way - ideally including an image of a paragon or exemplar. In both cases, there is no minimum size for the phys-rep but they must be wielded to be used. That is, they must be held in one hand that is not being used to hold anything else for as long as it takes to use them. A magical icon or musical instrument may not be used as a weapon or implement, even if they are weapon safe.

2.4.2 Armour

Armour	Skills Needed to Bond
Light Armour
Medium Armour
Heavy Armour
Mage Robes	Magician
Mage Armour	Magician, Battle Mage
Vestments	Dedication

- Armour includes all magic items that cover the body
- You must be wearing magic armour to use its magical abilities

Armour includes all magic items that cover a significant portion of the body when worn. The phys-rep for magical armour must cover the majority of the torso and at least one other location. Valid locations are the head (with a helm), the arms and the legs, or you may cover half of your arms and legs. Likewise, magical mage armour must comply with the coverage rules for normal mage armour.

Robes and vestments must be phys-repped with an article of clothing worn on the body such as a belt, sash, coat, jacket, or robe.

It is acceptable to wear a suit of heavier armour over the top of a suit of lighter magical armour, provided you phys-rep both sets of armour. You gain the hits and protection of the heaviest armour you wear, and the benefits of any magical armour you wear.

2.4.3 Talismans

Talismans	Skills Needed to Bond
Shields	Shield
Jewellery
Foci	Magician
Tools	Physick or Apothecary or Artisan
Regalia	Dedication
Standards

- You must be wearing or actively using a talisman to use its magical abilities

Talismans cover several different groups of magical items, including shields, ritual foci, ceremonial regalia, jewellery, and tools. Jewellery, regalia, and foci must be worn to use their magical abilities; shields and tools must be held in the hand to use their abilities.

Jewellery must be a phys-rep of an item that is worn. It may take the form of actual jewellery such as an amulet, ring, bracelet, or circlet. It may also take the form of any other small item intended to be worn, such as an embroidered favour, decorative braid, and the like. As much as possible the item should look distinctive and decorative.

Foci are items such as rings and masks that help focus energies in rituals. They can only be used by magicians.

Some tools are used by physicks, some by apothecaries, and some by artisans. You must have the appropriate skill to use a tool to be able to bond to it.

2.4.3.1 Magic Standards

A magic standard is a specific type of talisman. The phys-rep must be a banner or standard that is carried in the hand: it cannot be a back-banner or tabard. The banner pole must be at least 60" long, and the standard must be six square feet or more in area and at least one foot in any dimension (for example a 24" by 36" banner, or a 12" wide, 72" long pennant). You can include decorative additions to banners that are close to the minimum size to make them meet the requirements.

A standard must be wielded in at least one hand or it has no effect. You may not use a magic standard in the same hand as a shield or weapon. Regardless of construction, a standard cannot be used as a weapon nor may it be used to parry.

2.5 Group Magic Items

Group Magic Items	Band
Gonfalons	Banner
Paraphernalia	Coven
Reliquaries	Sect

- A band may only be bonded to one magic item at a time
- The magical item must be present and in use for the members to gain the benefit

These magic items must be bonded to a band to gain their benefits. A band can only be bonded to one magic item at a time and it must be present and actively in use for them to gain any benefits from it.

2.5.1 Gonfalon

A gonfalon provides an advantage to a banner. They follow the same phys-rep rules as magic standards. However a gonfalon is bonded to the entire band - rather than to a single individual like a magic standard.

2.5.2 Paraphernalia

Paraphernalia are props used in rituals by covens, that provide powerful bonuses to the magical strength of everyone in the coven. They can be orbs, books, chalices, or similar.

2.5.3 Reliquaries

A reliquary can be any phys-rep of a suitable relic, statue, chalice, tome, or actual reliquary.

2.6 Changing Magic Items

- You can never use two items of the same type in the same day
- If an item has been used then it cannot be used again that day

Any magician can perform a spell that breaks the bond between an item and a character. If the character has used the ability of their magical item in any way that day then they cannot benefit from the abilities of another item of the same type in the same day. The item is also affected - any character that is bonded to an item that has been used that day cannot make use of it until the following morning. The ref will inform you if an item has already been used that day when you are bonded to it.

E.g. You have a Shieldbreaker magic weapon that you have used to call SHATTER earlier that day, using the item. You cannot use any other magic weapon until the following day even if you bond to a new weapon. No other character can use this magic weapon until the following day even if they become bonded to it.

If the character or item is not present when the break bond spell is cast then the power of the item for the day is automatically used, as is the character's ability to use an item of that type for that day.

2.7 Schema

- A schema describes the method of creating a single magic item
- A schema requires ilium to create
- An artisan can use a schema they possess to learn how to make the item it describes
- It is not possible to copy a schema
- A schema can be destroyed with the Words of Ending ritual as if it were an artefact

A schema (plural: schemata) is a rare, magical item that contains all the details necessary to create a magic item. Schemata are made at a runeforge. Most (though not all) schemata include a description of the item, including all the rules, and at least some in-character commentary on the item.

A character who has the physical schema can learn how to make the item it describes by buying the extra item skill or using an empty item slot. This follows all the other rules for learning a skill during time-in. The schema must be taken to GOD or shown to a referee to allow the item it describes to be mastered in the field.

Every schema is a permanent item, but it requires the rare material ilium to create. A schema needs 10 rings of ilium to create.

The Imperial Senate can raise a motion to add a schema to the list of items any citizen can learn to make. If the motion passes, it costs 10 thrones to distribute the knowledge contained in the schema. The schema must be handed over to the civil service, and is destroyed in the process. If the Senate chooses to make the knowledge in a schema public knowledge, any character can learn to make the item and its details will be added to the wiki. The Senate could devolve this power to another body (such as the Imperial Conclave).

3 Potion

3.1 Overview

It is possible for a skilled apothecary to mix herbs together to create a powerful potion. Simple potions produce healing effects similar to herbs but they can be used by anyone - they do not require a skilled physick to apply them. More potent mixtures are capable of producing effects significantly more powerful than the simple herbs from which they are created.

Most minor poisons are obsolete within the Empire due to the presence of magicians who can remove basic poisons with a simple incantation, and apothecaries who can treat most poisoning with a simple herb. Those looking to harm their opponents through such means seek out apothecaries who can brew potent, near magical toxins.

3.2 Consuming a Potion

- Any character can use a potion with five seconds of appropriate roleplaying
- A potion is wasted if it is not applied in the correct way
- You cannot use a potion without a suitable lammy and phys-rep present
- You cannot take the action to use a potion if you are dying on zero hits
- You can feed a potion to a dying character if they are willing
- Some potions are tonics; a character can be under the effect of only one tonic at a time

Any character can use a potion. To use a potion, you must engage in at least five seconds of appropriate roleplaying. For a liquid that you drink the appropriate roleplaying might be taking the potion bottle, removing the stopper, and drinking the contents. Potions have both mechanical effects and roleplaying effects.

Potion card (front)

Potion card (back)

Most potions are indicated by a laminated paper strip with a tab sticking out of the laminate. The strip, printed by Profound Decisions, indicates the presence of the potion and includes the effects of the potion written on the inside of the strip as well as describing how it must be used. The roleplaying effects and the mechanical effects apply to you as soon as you rip on the laminate, provided you have applied it correctly. If you don't use a potion correctly, then it is wasted. In some cases, using the potion in the wrong way may have unpleasant side effects (for example, drinking Oil of Blackthorn usually results in nausea).

Roleplaying Effects	Mechanical Effects
You feel nauseous and dizzy; you may be overcome with retching and vertigo for a few moments.	You are relieved of both the venomous weakness conditions.
Maledict's Medicament	Maledict's

Potion card (inside)

You must provide a phys-rep for any potion that your character owns, and the lammy should be kept with the phys-rep, otherwise you cannot use the potion in game and should not carry it on your person.

You can only use a potion yourself if you are not dying on zero hits. If you are not dying then you can administer a potion to another character so that they can benefit from it (feeding it to them or applying it to their body) provided that they are willing. If they are not willing to let you administer the potion then it is wasted.

Potions come in four forms: they may be a liquid, salve, oil or infusion. This information is found at the top of the reverse side of the card that accompanies the potion. The form of a potion describes how it must be used if it is to be effective.

- A liquid is an elixir or medicine that is drunk.
- A salve is a balm or ointment that is smeared on the skin, or into a wound.
- An oil is a thick viscous liquid that is daubed or poured onto a weapon.
- An infusion is a volatile substance that reacts to heat. Infusions are burnt or boiled and the steam or smoke they produce inhaled.

You cannot poison a character with a regular potion. Potions which are not specifically designed to be used as poisons become inert within a few seconds of being mixed with food or drink. It is acceptable to roleplay mixing a liquid with water and handing it to a companion, but you cannot 'spike' someone with a potion without the assistance of a referee.

3.3 Philtres

- Philtres are a special kind of potion intended to be used quickly in battle
- A philtre requires five seconds of appropriate roleplaying to use
- Philtres can be correctly identified by any character

A philtre is a special kind of potion, intended to be used quickly in battle. All philtres are liquids that must be drunk to take effect, but they are sufficiently common and well known that they can be easily identified by any player-character who wants to do so.

Philtres do not use rip-on-use lammies - instead they use a card (like a herb) with the effects written on the outside. You rip this card to use the philtre. The card must be with the phys-rep of the potion - either attached to it or kept in a pouch alongside it. Because any player can read the card at any time, then any character can correctly identify the philtre if they wish to do so.

You must spend five seconds of appropriate roleplaying to use the philtre - but once complete, you benefit from the effects immediately.

3.4 Tonics

- A character can only be under the effect of one tonic at a time.
- If you are under the effect of one tonic and drink another tonic, the first potion's effects end and are replaced by those of the new potion.

Potions with long-duration effects such as those created by the Tonics of the Open Sky or the Tonics of the Deep Forest are tonics. A character can benefit from only one tonic at a time. If a potion is a tonic then this will be specifically stated in the rules effects written inside the potion lammy.

3.5 Poisons

- You must have a referee present to poison a character
- A poison loses effectiveness within fifteen minutes of being brewed

You can only surreptitiously administer a poison to a character if the potion is specifically designed to be used that way (such as The Assassin's Gate).

Poisons are highly volatile, and break down quickly. Once a poison is brewed, it loses all effectiveness within fifteen minutes, becoming inert. This creates a very narrow window of opportunity for the poison to be administered to a target; you cannot prepare a poison in advance for later use. To use a poison you need to take the ingredients to a referee and mix them together; the referee will then stay with the poison until it is delivered or until the duration expires, or it becomes clear you do not wish to continue.

A poison usually affects the first person who consumes it. If you pour a dose of poison into a jug it will poison the first person who drinks from that jug. If you pour five doses, it will poison the first five people who drink from it. Poisons do not stack with themselves; someone who consumes five doses of a poison in quick succession is poisoned only once.

Antidotes work in a similar way. In each case, there is a specific antidote for each poison. If the wrong antidote is used, the target will die. An antidote must be brewed and then applied within fifteen minutes - usually the apothecary who brews it is responsible for treating the victim of poisoning.

Most fatal poisons will kill their target within thirty minutes of the referee delivering the poison effects if the correct antidote is not provided.

3.6 Identifying a Potion

- Anyone who recognizes the in-character description of a potion can identify it using appropriate roleplaying
- You cannot write the in-character name of the potion on the out-of-character lammy

On the back of each potion card is an in-character description. Each potion with the same effect has the same description. The descriptive text suggests ways you might gather the information about the contents through roleplaying. Any character can try to identify a potion by looking at the description.

Although it is perfectly legal to add an in-character label to the phys-rep for a potion - you must not write the in-character name of the potion on the out-of-character lammy - your character can label the bottle - the player can not add additional information to the lammy.

A character with the apothecary skill who is not sure about a potion can ask a referee if they recognise it as one of the ones they know how to make. Apothecaries have no special ability to recognise potions they cannot make.

The detect magic spell is no use in identifying potions or their effects; they are herbal effects, not magical ones. Some magicians use ritual magic to identify potions, but it is rarely as effective as simply asking an apothecary who knows how to brew that preparation to identify it.

3.7 Brewing Potions

- Characters with the apothecary skill can mix herbs to create potions.
- Potions can be mixed between events using the inventory system until the late booking deadline
- Ingredients can be exchanged for potions at GOD.
- You may be able to apply a potion directly to someone with the help of a referee if you know how to make it and have the correct ingredients.

Potions are usually mixed using herbs, although some potions use other components as well such as liao or mana crystals, or even ilium. You need to take the materials to a referee or to GOD and exchange them for potion lammies. You can make several potions at once.

It takes around a few minutes of appropriate roleplaying to brew a potion; it is acceptable to count the time you spend exchanging ingredients for potions towards this time if you wish. The exception to this is the creation of poisons and antidotes which follow different guidelines.

When a character purchases the Apothecary skill they learn how to mix all the potions in the Apothecary Potions recipe. Each time they purchase the extra recipe skill, they may pick one additional recipe set from the list below; they gain the ability to brew all the potions in the new set they have chosen.

For example, an apothecary who gains training in the Master Medicinal learns to prepare three useful healing elixirs - Tranquil Nostrum, Maledict's Medicament and the Sovereign Specific. All three recipes are gained at the same time and are not learnt separately.

3.8 Herbal

- A herbal describes the method of creating a potion or set of potions
- The Empire can only currently create herbals by using the Thornsong College
- An apothecary can use a herbal they possess to learn how to make the recipes it describes
- It is not possible to copy a herbal
- A herbal can be destroyed with the Words of Ending ritual as if it were an artefact

A herbal is a rare, magical item that contains all the details necessary to create a set of potions. The only way for the Empire to create a herbal is by the Thornsinger using their power of announcement to guide the apothecaries of Thornsong House. Most (though not all) herbals include a description of the various potions, including all the rules, and at least some in-character commentary on the item.

A character who has the physical herbal can learn how to make the recipes it describes by buying the extra recipe skill. This follows all the other rules for learning a skill during time-in. The herbal must be taken to GOD or shown to a referee to allow the recipes it describes to be mastered in the field. A herbal is a permanent item.

The Apothecaries Guild can add a herbal to the list of items any citizen can learn to make. If the sodality agrees, it costs 10 thrones to distribute the knowledge contained in the herbal. The herbal must be handed over to the civil service and is destroyed in the process. If the sodality chooses to make a herbal public knowledge, any character can learn to make the recipes, and their details will be added to the wiki.

3.9 Recipe List

There is a list of recipes known to Imperial apothecaries, which includes all of the following.

Potion	Description
Apothecary Potions	Every apothecary knows how to mix these five preparations; they provide valuable medical aid.
Balms of the Fountainhead	Ointments that increase the power of ritualists to wield Spring lore.
Decoctions of Hoarfrost	Preparations that increase the power of Winter ritualists.
Double-sided Blade	Preparations that allow a character to survive lethal blows but with a significant cost.
Infusions of Feathers	Mysterious infusions that grant supernatural insight to those who breath their mystic fumes.
Lambent Essences	Methodical elixirs that increase the power of ritualists to wield Day magic.
Legacy of Thorns	Toxic preparations that weaken and envenom, used on weapons or to poison the unwary.
Magnum Opus	Mysterious preparations that increase the power of ritualists to wield Night magic.
Master Medicinal	Specialist medicinal potions that restore groups of people or provide multiple healing benefits in one swallow.
Philtres of the High Peaks	Potions that restore the personal mana of magicians, or drain it completely.
Philtres of War	Potions that restore hero points and bolster a character's fighting spirit - or remove it.
Runa's Gift	Potions that allow orcs to perform magical acts.
The Assassin's Gate	Lethal ingested poisons that cause swift, painful death - and their antidotes.
The Last Resort	Lethal ingested poisons captured from the Druj that cause sickness and agonising death - and their antidotes.
The Winter Moon	Lethal ingested poisons that cause madness and lingering death - and their antidotes.
Tisanes of the Labyrinth	Liao-based preparations that empower religious ceremonies with extra strength.
Tonics of the Deep Forest	Potions that enhance a character's ability to take damage, allowing them to shrug off wounds that might otherwise incapacitate them.
Tonics of the Open Sky	Potions that give enhanced fortitude; the extra time they grant mortally wounded characters has saved many lives.
Tinctures of True Eminence	Heady elixirs that increase the power of ritualists to wield Summer magic.
Unguents of Falling Leaves	Exotic preparations that increase the power of ritualists to wield Autumn magic.
Unshackled Gift	Potent preparations that allow orcs to perform heroic acts.

4 Spellcasting

Magic can heal or harm with equal facility.

4.1 Overview

A magician is any character that purchases the magician skill. Becoming a magician allows a character to cast spells, and with additional study they can master the realm lores that allow them to perform powerful and versatile rituals. Like artistic ability, command of magic is both a talent and a skill - some people are born with a natural knack for working magic, while others develop their ability to weave spells through hard work and long hours of study. Even a natural talent needs help channelling and honing their power, however - there are many stories of prodigies who lack the ability to control their magic properly causing minor magical mishaps. In the Empire it is common for a magician to learn their art studying with a more experienced mentor. It is theoretically possible to be "self taught" however - there are libraries and tomes that lay out magical law in all the nations.

Every magician, no matter where in the world they originate, learns three common spells (sometimes called cantrips in the Empire): detect magic, operate portal, and create bond. These versatile utility spells allow a magician to perform a number of functions, and serve as the foundation for all other magical ability. These spells are only the beginning however - with additional study a magician can master more incantations that allow them to channel their personal magic to heal their allies, repel their foes, and even grant the recently departed the ability to speak to the living.

In addition, every magician knows how to wield wands and rods. These implements are to the magician what swords and axes are to the warrior, or medicines and bandages to the physick. Their main use is to channel and unleash martial incantations, but even the most peaceful magician can benefit from bonding a magical implement to enhance their ability to work magic.

Finally, some magicians focus their magical study towards battlefield applications. These brave individuals are called battle mages and they learn to channel their power through staves and attune themselves to special armour designed specifically to protect magicians while leaving them free to perform magic. This last is especially valuable to magicians who go into dangerous situations; mundane armour prevents the casting of even the simplest spell.

4.2 Spellcasting

- Every magician starts with four personal mana every day
- You must expend personal mana or a mana crystal to cast a spell
- You cannot cast spells while wearing armour other than a helmet
- All spells require vocals clearly audible to everyone within a few metres

Any character that purchases the magician skill has four personal mana and is able to cast create bond, detect magic or operate portal. Each time a character purchases an extra spell they must choose one additional spell from the spellcasting list.

Your character may also use crystallised mana to cast spells; a single mana crystal can be used to cast any single spell.

Your personal mana replenishes overnight.

If you have the battle mage skill then you can cast spells while wearing mage armour, but you cannot cast spells while wearing regular armour. The only exception is a helmet: helmets do not interfere with spellcasting in any way.

All spell vocals require appropriate roleplaying which must include spell vocals in a clear voice audible to everyone within a few metres of you. All spells are one of two types, regular spells or offensive spells.

Regular Spells	Mana Cost
Create bond	1
Detect magic	1
Operate portal	1
Heal	1
Mend	1
Night pouch	1
Purify	1
Restore limb	1
Voice for the dead	1

4.3 Regular Spells

- Require at least thirty seconds of appropriate roleplaying
- You must be capable of touching the target with the casting hand throughout the casting of the spell
- The spell fails if you or your target are hit or attack another character during spellcasting
- You can choose to swift cast a regular spell

To cast a regular spell you must complete at least thirty seconds of appropriate roleplaying including spell vocals, and the use of one hand. These requirements do not mean you must chant or speak for the entire thirty seconds; you must include some vocal component but your appropriate roleplaying can also involve tracing magical signs or runes in the air, using props such as scrolls or powders, shaping magic with mystical passes, and the like.

You must be able to touch the target with your casting hand throughout the casting of the spell. Even if you do not touch the target you must be close enough to easily do so - you cannot cast a regular spell on a target who is only close enough to touch with an implement (but see swift casting below).

If you or your target attacks another character or either of you are hit then the spell fails. Your mana is not lost but you must begin the spell again.

4.3.1 Swift casting

- Any regular spell can be cast with a few words of appropriate roleplaying instead of thirty seconds
- Swift casting a spell costs 2 mana rather than 1
- The effects of some spells change when they are swift cast
- If you are in combat, you must touch your target with an implement - a wand, rod, or staff

Any magician who knows a regular spell can choose to swift cast it. Swift casting effectively allows the regular spell to be cast as if it were an offensive spell, but at the cost of an additional mana.

Some spells such as purify and heal have different effects when swift cast. You must make clear to the target what the effect is.

Magic items, rituals, and similar abilities do not provide the ability to swift cast a spell unless they explicitly say they do. For example, a wand may say that it allows you to cast or swift cast the purify spell, or a rod might allow you to swift cast the heal spell as if you knew it. An item that allows you to cast a spell as if you knew it without spending mana never allows you to change how it is cast.

4.4 Offensive Spells

Offensive Spells	Mana Cost
------------------	-----------

Empower	1
Entangle	1
Paralysis	2
Repel	1
Shatter	2
Venom	1
Weakness	1

- Require a few words of appropriate roleplaying
- Require you to hit the target with an implement - a wand, rod, or staff

To cast an offensive spell you must utter a few words of appropriate roleplaying including spell vocals while you strike or touch your target with a wand, rod, or staff. You cannot cast an offensive spell without using a suitable implement.

If you deliver an offensive melee strike to touch the target with your implement then the target also loses one global hit. You should always assume that your opponent has wounded you in this way unless their roleplaying clearly indicates otherwise.

Offensive spells are not interrupted or lost if you are attacked. For spells other than venom or weakness you do not lose the mana if it is clear that the target has not taken the effect.

5 Rituals

5.1 Overview

Rituals are powerful magical spells that magicians can learn to perform by buying lore in one or more of the six realms. There are many more rituals than spells and most are much more powerful but they take longer to perform and can only be cast using crystal mana.

Some powerful rituals are too difficult for any one magician to perform alone. Magicians usually form covens to allow them to combine their skills to perform the most potent rituals.

5.2 Basic Rules

- Every ritual draws on one of the six realms
- Every ritual has a cost in crystallised mana to perform the ritual
- A ritualist may only expend mana up to their level of skill
- Mana crystals expended by a character who has mastered the ritual counts double
- The regio at Anvil allows magicians to increase their effective skill to allow them to perform more powerful rituals

There are six magical realms, which the Empire call Day, Night, Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter. Every ritual draws its power from just one of these six realms. You must have a rank of the appropriate Realm lore to attempt a ritual of that realm.

All rituals require crystallised mana (from a mana site) to cast, they are too powerful to perform with personal mana. The magnitude of the ritual is the amount of crystal mana needed to perform it. The amount of crystallised mana that each ritualist can expend is limited by their level of skill with the appropriate realm lore.

Magicians can master a handful of formulaic rituals. Mana crystals used by a character that has mastered the ritual counts double. Magicians may choose to master formulaic rituals when they purchase realm lore skills or the extra ritual skill.

E.g. A magician is performing the ritual, the Ascetic Star of Atun, a magnitude 6 Day ritual. The ritualist has three levels of skill in Day lore, allowing them to contribute three mana crystals, however the caster has mastered the ritual, doubling their effective mana. This allows them to achieve the 6 points required for the ritual.

A regio is an area with a magical aura. Most regios are keyed to one of the realms and some are powerful enough that they make it easier for ritualists to perform rituals of that realm while inside it. There is a powerful permanent regio of all six realms at Anvil that allows each magicians contributing to the ritual to gain an additional effective rank of the appropriate Realm lore skill, subject to the normal rules for effective skill.

For example, A coven of three characters each with one rank of Summer lore use the anvil regio. They each act as if their Summer lore were rank 2 and can contribute 2 mana crystals to the ritual. A fourth member of their coven who has no ranks in Summer still cannot contribute to the ritual.

5.3 Realms

- Every ritual is keyed to a single realm

All the rituals in Imperial lore are keyed to a single realm. You can only attempt to cast that ritual if you have sufficient skill with that realm lore. Some ritual effects can be duplicated by clever use of the magic of another realm, but there is usually a steep cost to do this. Each realm has its own strengths and weaknesses and most formulaic rituals have been formulated using the best realm to produce that effect.

Ritual Summaries

Spring rituals

Summer rituals

Autumn rituals

Winter rituals

Day rituals

Night rituals

Each realm has a summary of the rituals associated with it, stating the name, basic effect and magnitude. These summaries are linked on the right. There is also a simple but complete list of every ritual that is part of Imperial lore available.

5.4 Performing a Ritual

- Rituals require several minutes of appropriate roleplaying; it should be obvious to everyone nearby that you are performing a ritual
- You cannot perform rituals while wearing armour
- If possible, you should get a ref before performing your ritual

Rituals require several minutes of appropriate roleplaying. Imperial magicians use a number of different sources, symbols, methods and theories when designing their rituals. The most common magical techniques are; rune magic, dramaturgy, astronomancy and the music of the spheres. These represent bodies of magical lore and theory that can be used to add depth and significance to all magic, and have special resonance for ritual magic. In addition, the description of each ritual includes a Common Elements section that can be used as a starting point for developing the roleplaying required to perform a ritual.

It should be obvious to everyone nearby that you are performing a ritual. While it is possible to conceal precisely what your ritual is intended to achieve, it is against the spirit of ritual magic to intentionally perform a ritual that appears to have an opposite effect. For example, performing a ritual that looks as if it is intended to heal someone that is actually intended to destroy one of their magic items is inappropriate.

We do not mark your performance in a ritual, but we do log every ritual, so that we can record and apply the effects. You should try and get a ref before you perform a ritual if possible, so that they can log the ritual.

5.5 Formulaic Rituals

- Ritualists can perform any formulaic ritual if they have the ranks to do so

The Imperial Conclave has helped to spread the knowledge of countless different magical rituals across the Empire. This list of formulaic rituals is referred to as the Imperial lore. Any Imperial magician can perform a formulaic ritual that is in Imperial lore if they have sufficient ranks in the appropriate realm. In addition a ritualist may choose to master a number of formulaic rituals - this makes those rituals much easier and cheaper to cast.

5.6 Spontaneous Magic

- Ritualists can attempt to create spontaneous magical effects through the use of an arcane projection

It is possible to create a magical effect at an event that is not part of the existing library of known Imperial rituals. Spontaneous magic requires an arcane projection to perform. Creating an arcane projection is expensive, and can only be done between events.

5.7 Battlefield rituals

- Battlefield rituals can be cast on the battlefield without a referee present

Many rituals do not require a referee to cast on the battlefield. This is a special exception which exists for a subset of rituals to make it as easy as possible for magicians to perform their rituals on battlefield without needing to find a referee first. Only a battlefield ritual can be performed in this way and you must follow the additional rules when casting without a referee present.

5.8 Covens

- A coven of ritualists can combine their skills to perform a ritual together

A ritualist can always perform a ritual by themselves. Most ritualists are also part of a coven, a mystical union that extends the hearth magic of oaths to allow participants to combine their strength.

Members of a coven can work together to perform a ritual with each participant contributing mana to a ritual up to the normal limit of their ability.

5.8.1 Mastery

It is not uncommon for some members of a coven to have mastered an Imperial formulaic ritual while others have not. In this case only the mana contributed to the ritual by the magicians who have mastered the ritual is doubled.

5.8.2 Contributors

Some rituals refer to contributors. A contributor is a character who is a member of the coven performing the ritual, has at least one rank of the realm lore used by that ritual, and participates in the performance.

A character can never contribute to a ritual if they have not spent experience points on the appropriate ritual lore skill.

5.9 Imperial Lore

Imperial lore is a library of known rituals that is shared by all Imperial magicians. Even where an Imperial citizen has not mastered a ritual that is part of Imperial lore, they can still try to perform it - whereas new effects that are not part of Imperial lore require the creation of an arcane projection or access to a ritual text. The Imperial Conclave has the ability to add new rituals to this body of knowledge through the declaration of Imperial lore.

6 Ritual theory

6.1 Overview

Imperial magicians who have studied the lore of the realms can use mana crystals to manipulate a realm to create magic effects. The most effective way to do this is to master one or more of the formulaic rituals that are part of Imperial lore, but the outcome of these rituals is fixed. If a magician wishes to achieve an entirely new effect, something not contained in Imperial lore, then they will need to prepare an arcane projection to create the spontaneous ritual effect.

A good understanding of the theory of ritual magic is essential for creating effective spontaneous magic. There are the known laws of magic that govern the rules by which it operates, as well as restrictions that put hard limits on what magic can achieve. Eternals can have a big impact on rituals, and there are some rituals that can only be created or cast with the help or agreement of a specific eternal. Having a good working knowledge of the laws and limits of magic is crucial when creating or discussing magic in Empire.

6.2 Resonance and Dissonance

- Every realm of magic is different - each has its own merits and flaws representing what it can do well and what it cannot do at all
- A realm is especially good at the things it is resonant with
- A realm cannot achieve game effects that it is dissonant with

Ritual magic is not limitless in scope and there are a number of fundamental laws that are common to all the realms, and certain limits that it cannot easily overcome. In addition to this, each of the six realms (Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter, Day and Night) have strengths and weaknesses, referred to as resonance and dissonance. Where a realm is resonant with a theme, rituals that produce that outcome are easier to cast using that realm than any other. For example, the Spring Realm is resonant with healing magic, so rituals that heal the wounded are easier to perform using the Spring realm than any other realm.

Where a realm is dissonant with a theme, then it is much harder to create a ritual effect that produces that outcome, if it is even possible. For example, the Autumn realm is dissonant with healing magic, it can repair broken items and damaged buildings, but it has almost no ability at all to heal the wounded.

It is common for magicians to try to bypass the dissonances of a realm - usually because they want to use the one realm they have mastered. This is almost invariably a mistake - each realm is unique and there are many things that each realm cannot achieve. It is better to find a magician who has mastered the appropriate realm for a ritual, than to attempt to create an arcane projection with a dissonant realm.

Resonance and dissonance is not simply about the form that the ritual takes - it is the outcome that is crucial. A sly magician might attempt to create a Night ritual that employs obfuscation to cause two armies to clash with each other in the hope that this will wreak widespread destruction. This attempt will usually fail, because while obfuscation is a resonance of Night magic - the outcome is very different. It is the result that matters most, and since this ritual would cause destruction and Night magic is dissonant with that theme, then the ritual will fail.

6.3 Laws

- The laws of magic are axioms that help a magician to understand magic and how it works

Magic is governed by a number of principles that help to determine what will happen, most commonly referred to as the laws of magic. These important axioms are a consequence of the way magic works in the world of Empire - they reflect the underlying nature of the world itself. Like the limits of magic, a rough knowledge of the various laws is useful to any character who wishes to emphasize their knowledge and grasp of magic.

The laws of magic are distinct from the limits of magic - the latter are hard and fast rules that can never be broken. The laws of magic are principles that are a useful guide to understand why some things work the way they do, and how things might work. Not every ritual appears to perfectly obey all the laws of magic, unlike the limits of magic, it is possible to emphasise to use raw power to get round the laws of magic to a very limited extent. In practice most rituals are designed to incorporate the laws of magic where they are appropriate.

6.4 Limits

- The limits of magic are fundamental rules of the Empire game that cannot be broken
- Any arcane projection that attempts to break a limit of magic will fail

There are fundamental limits on what magic can achieve that are well known and understood. These are commonly referred to as the limits of magic. Magicians across the Empire have spent centuries searching for ways to surpass these limits and never found a reliable way to overcome them. Having a good working knowledge of these limitations is a good way to demonstrate your character's skill with ritual magic.

In the game, the limits of magic are absolute rules for the game. While anyone can play a character that is striving to overcome one or more of these limitations, that is not a character goal that will ever be fulfilled. These limits are reflections of the game rules, so any arcane projection that is submitted that tries to break one of these rules will fail. For that reason, it is always better to check any arcane projection against these limits before you submit it.

6.5 Divinations

- Divination is a specialised branch of magic with its own rules

Divination is a specialised branch of ritual magic that provides information to the caster or casters. It can be incredibly useful, but it has strict limits on what it can achieve that are unique to this kind of magic. Most divinations (though not all) are of the Day realm and provide facts and figures, precise measurements and known quantities.

The Night realm is different, because the disordered chaotic nature of this realm means that divinations that draw upon it tend to provide unpredictable answers. Responses are often in the form of riddles and symbolic visions, and they might reveal portentous omens or subtle clues that can be used to infer something.

In all cases, divination is a special branch of magic with its own rules that are well worth reading if your character is attempting to create a new ritual that might divine information about something.

6.6 Eternals

- It is only possible to create rituals that involve eternals with their prior agreement
- Some rituals can only be created or cast with the aid of an eternal

The eternals are the most powerful inhabitants of the six realms. Each eternal has unique abilities and powers due to their command of the magic of their realm. Because of this, eternals can help mortal magicians to create and cast rituals that use or draw on some of the most powerful aspects of a realm. Many ritual effects can only be created with the power of an eternal - something that must be agreed with the eternal in question before it can be cast.

Imperial magicians have studied eternals and rituals looking to codify the many ways in which these beings can help with rituals. Understanding the benefits and restrictions of using eternals in rituals can be crucial - especially when trying to create a new arcane projection.

6.7 War Magic

- Each realm can only be used to create one kind of army enchantment unless you have the assistance of an eternal
- Each realm can be used to enchant fleets and military units, but only for certain types of voyage or venture

War magic, like divinations, is a particular application of magic, often on a huge scale, that has limitations of its own. The resonances and dissonances of a realm affect the kinds of enchantment it is possible to create on armies, military units and fleets. In most cases, a realm can only be used to create a single kind of army enchantment, unless the magician is able to procure the help of an eternal in the creation of the ritual. Autumn is something of an exception to this rule, as the realm's emphasis on logistics makes it more flexible than other realms, but even it has major limitations on what it can achieve.

Similar rules apply to enchantments that benefit military units and fleets. There are different kinds of voyages and ventures and each realm excels at one or two types of action that a military unit or fleet can take. Most realms can be used for other types of action, they're just less effective at it, but each realm has one or more types of action that it cannot be used for at all.

7 Regio

7.1 Overview

The mortal world of Empire is surrounded and infused by six magical realms, which Imperial magicians have named Day, Night, Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter. Normally the power of these realms is sequestered away; magicians can perform spells and rituals that draw on the power of the realms, but otherwise it does not affect the day-to-day lives of mortals. A regio is a region where the power of one or more of the realms has seeped into the mortal world. Some regio occur naturally, others are a response to significant events or powerful magics. Some regio are permanent, some last only for a few hours; some are stable while others wax and wane with the hour or the season. Some are only detectable with magic, others cause effects that are so pronounced that you cannot fail to realize that something strange is happening.

Regio are useful for magicians, and some rituals are so powerful that they can only be performed in a regio. But the main reason regio exist is to create a suite of mechanics that covers many of the classic themes and ideas of mythology. A regio could be a fairy ring that fills with music and dancers at midnight. It could be a strange glade in a Dawnish forest into which knights are prone to wander but never return. A regio is any location in Empire that is mystical in some way, either enchanted or cursed.

7.2 Basics

- A regio is an area with a magical aura that exists in the mortal world
- Regio are connected to one of the realms and draw power from them
- Ritualists can detect regio and discover their realm connection with the detect magic spell

An area with a regio in it will often reflect the nature of the realm it is connected to; an area with a strong connection to one of the themes of a realm may over decades or even centuries, generate a regio.

For example, a Winter regio might form on a battlefield where hundreds have died and their bones been left without funeral rites. A Spring regio may form at the heart of an untracked wilderness. An ancient library with hundreds of books and scrolls or an observatory where astronomancers have watched the stars for centuries may form a Day regio.

A regio often has an aura associated with it that creates a powerful roleplaying effect. Sometimes these auras may have mechanical effects as well. Neither type of aura can be permanently removed as long as the regio is intact.

Regio often grant additional power to ritual magicians.

The Imperial regio is a unique regio found at Anvil.

For example, a Winter regio may have an aura of dread that fills everyone entering it with the certainty that they are being watched by a horrible monster. A Spring regio may allow anyone within its bounds to recover hits with fifteen minutes of relaxation and rest.

Some regio are temporary, or exist only at certain times of the year. Some eternals can help create a temporary or permanent regio, provided that mortal creatures create an appropriate area for the regio to 'anchor' to first.

For example, a Day eternal may agree to help a group of scholars create a regio in their library provided they create a weltsilver and mithril beacon to go on top of it. A Summer eternal may allow the formation of a temporary regio on a battlefield at the site where five enemy standards are arranged in a circle.

7.2.1 Using Regio

- Ritual magicians can use powerful regio to enhance their rituals
- Only one ritual can be performed using a regio at a time
- Some regio have special properties when used as part of a ritual performance

A regio may help a coven or skilled magician to perform rituals. A handful of rituals are so powerful that they can only be performed using a suitable regio. For example, any Winter regio can be used to perform Whispers through the Black Gate. Any Spring regio can be used to perform Thunderous Deluge.

A ritual that affects a region or territory requires the use of a regio in that region or territory; you cannot use a Spring regio in Bregasland to cast Thunderous Deluge on Skarsind, only on Bregasland.

Only one ritual can be performed using the power of a regio at one time. A new ritual cannot draw on the regio while one is already being cast by a ritualist or coven unless that ritual is disrupted. In the event that two groups try to start a ritual simultaneously, neither of them can draw on the regio.

Some regio are sufficiently powerful that they may provide additional benefits when used to perform a ritual. Usually, these benefits make it easier to perform rituals by allowing contributing magicians to use more crystal mana than their skill would normally allow. For example, a powerful Spring regio might allow a contributor who had a single rank of Spring lore to contribute two crystal mana to a Spring ritual, rather than just one, subject to the normal rules for effective skill.

7.2.2 The Imperial Regio

- The Imperial Regio is a particularly powerful regio connected to all the realms located at Anvil
- This regio is connected to the entire Empire and powerful enough to enhance all rituals performed in it
- Rituals that normally take at least 10 minutes to cast can be performed more quickly using the Imperial regio

The Imperial Regio or Anvil Regio is a powerful regio located near the Sentinel Gate at Anvil. The regio is connected to all six realms, which makes it virtually unique in the Empire and its presence here is the most likely reason that the founders chose Anvil as the meeting point for the Empire.

The Imperial Regio is powerful enough to enhance any rituals cast within it. Any ritual performed in the Imperial Regio may harness its power to enhance the realm lore (of any realm) of each contributor by one rank, subject to the normal rules for effective skill. It also makes it easier for magicians to work certain kinds of rituals; a ritual that normally requires at least 10 minutes of roleplaying to perform can be cast with at least 5 minutes of roleplaying instead. Rituals that require the Imperial regio - such as Hallow of the Green World - cannot have their casting time reduced in this manner.

The Anvil regio can also be used to cast powerful rituals that affect a large area on any territory controlled by the Empire. This allows Imperial magicians to perform rituals from Anvil that would otherwise require them to be in a regio situated in the target territory. A ritual can only be performed in this way if it explicitly says so in the ritual description. For example, the Anvil regio can be used to perform Thunderous Deluge on any Imperial territory, but cannot be used to perform that ritual on a barbarian or foreign territory.

7.3 Portals and Chambers

- A regio may contain a portal
- A portal leads to a chamber, a location closer to the realm
- Magicians can detect a portal using operate portal
- Chambers may be inhabited by beings from the realm
- No matter how you leave a chamber, you always reappear in the place you left the mortal world

Some regio contain a portal, a magical door that leads deeper into the realm. Imperial magicians refer to the place that lies beyond a portal as a chamber. A chamber is any location that is beyond the mortal realm but is not fully part of one of the supernatural realms. For example, a bleak haunted castle may exist as a chamber reached from a Winter regio. A pleasant glade full of flowers and feasting tables may be a chamber reached from a Night regio. A primeval forest inhabited by carnivorous giant insects might be a chamber reached from a Spring regio.

A portal can also be discovered with ritual magic (such as Shadowed Glass of Sung for example). It is sometimes possible to wander through a portal unintentionally, especially if an inhabitant of the chamber beyond wishes to attract mortals. More commonly, a magician uses the operate portal spell to pass through a portal intentionally.

Chambers are often inhabited by lesser eternal, heralds, mortals and creatures from the eternal realm as well as people from the mortal world, but there are strict rules that govern entry and exit from a chamber. An eternal who can enter a chamber from the realm, but cannot move from there to the mortal world. A mortal can likewise enter, but cannot pass beyond the chamber to the adjoining realm. Any mortal who enters through a portal discovers that, regardless of how they leave the chamber, they always depart through the door they came in through. Only heralds seem to be able to move freely between the mortal world and the realm using a portal.

7.3.1 The Anvil Portal

There is a portal in the Anvil Regio that leads to the Hall of Worlds. Any magician who casts operate portal on the Anvil Regio can travel to the Hall of Worlds.

Any magician who does so once (at the normal cost of one mana) can then use the spell freely to enter the Hall of Worlds through the Anvil Regio for the rest of the event without needing to spend additional mana.
